

Lithuania invites Kremlin to talks

President of republic expects problems

Associated Press

MOSCOW — Lithuania's president Monday invited Kremlin officials to Lithuania to discuss the republic's secession drive and struck a conciliatory note by saying Lithuania wants gradual, not immediate, independence.

While government officials sought a compromise solution to the debate, 1,000 pro-independence demonstrators rallied at the Lithuanian prosecutor's office to protest its occupation by Soviet soldiers.

Washington Post

MOSCOW's order to all 100 foreign journalists to leave the republic by Monday.

There was no immediate response from Moscow to the invitation from President Vytautas Landsbergis of Lithuania.

Landsbergis told Lithuanian legislators that officials face "political difficulties" in dealing with Lithuania's March 11 declaration of independence.

Therefore it is essential to look for a way of helping them and ourselves," he said in comments carried on Lithuanian Radio and monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp. in London.

Gorbachev faces independence movements in several of the Soviet Union's 15 republics. Lithuania and Baltic neighbors, Estonia and Latvia, were annexed after the Soviet took control of them under the Yalta-Stalin pact of 1940.

The Lithuanian declaration of independence "may seem to some people... a demand that power be handed over the very next day," Landsbergis said. "We did not expect this and did not count upon it."

Instead, Landsbergis told legislators the republic had stated "how by means of agreements and a gradual takeover of certain functions, we would consolidate our independence."

Gorbachev has said talks on independence can take place only if Lithuania renounces its declaration of March 11. He has pressured the republic to do so by sending Red Army soldiers to take over public buildings in the Lithuanian capital, Vilnius.

Refusal to take back the declaration of independence may result in "grave consequences for all of us," Gorbachev said in a statement to Lithuanians on Saturday.

In a telegram sent to Gorbachev on Monday morning, Landsbergis indicated that legislators would debate a full response, and he invited a Kremlin representative to take part in the discussion to explain Moscow's stand.

Landsbergis also sent a delegation to Moscow in the hopes of starting negotiations in the Soviet capital.

Spokesmen for the Lithuanian Supreme Council said legislator Egidius Bickauskas had gone to Moscow in hopes of meeting with Soviet leaders, and that three other people including Deputy Premier Romualdas Ozolas were following.

About 1,000 pro-independence demonstrators rallied outside the Lithuanian prosecutor's office against the occupation of the building Friday night by Soviet soldiers.

Both a prosecutor appointed by Lithuania's breakaway government and one sent from Moscow were working in the building Monday, employees said. They reported a tense atmosphere but no direct conflicts between the two.

President Bush recently criticized the settling of Soviet immigrants on war-won land, including east Jerusalem, saying it was an obstacle to making peace with the Arabs.

Leon Shansviteh, who arrived two months ago from Baku, in Soviet Azerbaijan, said, "We have

"They did not even recognize the story of Moses in the bulrushes, a story even non-Jews know."

— Yosef Mendeleivitch
Soviet Jew

the right to live in Gilo. I don't understand President Bush. This area was empty until Jews built here. Jerusalem is a Jewish city."

Reading from the Haggada, which recounts the Exodus from Egypt, Mendeleivitch said there are similarities between the flight from the pharaoh's oppression and today's flight of tens of thousands of Jews from the Soviet Union.

"In the Passover story, the Pharaoh kept saying the Jews could leave, but whenever they tried he stopped them," Mendeleivitch said. "Then God sent him 10 plagues to convince him to let the Jewish people go."

"The same thing happened with Soviet leaders in the Kremlin," Mendeleivitch said. "Finally, after world economic and medical sanctions, they had no choice but to let us go."

Spurred by reports of anti-Semitism in the Soviet republics, about 16,000 Soviet Jews arrived in Israel in the past year. According to the American Jewish Committee, the rate has reached more than 5,000 per month.

A group of religious women arranged for Mendeleivitch to teach the traditions of the Seder, or Passover dinner, in an attempt to make entry into Jewish culture easier for the immigrants.

White tablecloths, long candlesticks and all the traditional dishes were on display: hard-boiled eggs, horseradish, lettuce, parsley, wine, salt water, and "charoset," a sweet pate of apples, nuts and wine.

Asa Luzman, who arrived a year ago from Kiev, said, "I never knew anything about the holiday before I came to Israel. It's such a shame."

A few, like the Shansviteh family, only two months in Israel, were at home with the ceremonies. Shansviteh's grandfather, an observant Jew, had led his family Passover from memory every year.

Concrete Art Contest opens BYU Art Week

By WENDY SEAL
Universe Staff Writer

The sidewalks in front of the Harris Fine Arts Center became a rainbow collage Monday as BYU students used pastel chalk to create works of art on the concrete.

More than 30 students participated in the Concrete Art Contest sponsored by the Art Education Department. A cash prize of $50 was given to four winning drawings.

Bruce Robertson won for his abstract drawing of a person, done in earth-tone chalks; Kim Gubbine and Pat Jensen won for their brightly colored drawing of abstract, circular designs; Jennifer Scocille and Carolee Cardon won for their drawing of two jumping figures suspended on a green and blue background; Julie Bowen and Simeen Brown won for their tapestry-like drawing, which featured a large orange and yellow fish.

Other art students contributed sports illustrations, spring logos, portraits, story-book characters and "Mutant Samurai Harvs" to the drawings lining the sidewalk between the HFAC and the Ernest L. Wilkinson Center.

"This is true modern art," said Brown, a junior from Provo, majoring in illustration, who collaborated with fellow illustration major Julie Bowen, a senior from Portland, Ore., on "Fish Out of Africa."

BYU law professor explains abortion veto

By DAVID J. HIGGINBOTHAM
Universe Staff Writer

A BYU law professor is receiving national attention for his role in consulting with Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus before the governor vetoed a controversial anti-abortion bill Friday.

Richard Wilkins, a pro-life advocate and attorney who has worked on the abortion issue for nine years, said he gave the governor his advice solely as a legal professional regardless of how he felt personally about abortion.

The bill, if signed by Andrus, would have banned abortions except in cases of rape, incest, maternal health and fetal deformity.

"The Idaho statute had the right objectives, but it went about it in the wrong way, because its definitions, as Gov. Andrus said in his veto message, were simply too narrow," Wilkins said.

According to the governor's written statement, "I am advised by legal scholars of both political parties that, in their opinion, there is not the remotest chance of this legislation's being found constitutional by the Supreme Court."

"The definition of 'maternal health' and the reporting requirements for pregnancies resulting from rape and incest are too narrow to be accepted by any court. The civil enforcement provisions would be quickly struck down," the statement said.

For example, maternal health was defined as an abortion necessary to preserve the life of the mother or prevent severe or long-lasting physical injury, Wilkins said.

"A doctor will tell you there are many circumstances that don't include merely life or death, or severe and long-lasting physical damage or injury where the doctor may recommend an abortion," he said.

"The statute also totally eliminated any mental health concerns. Mental health was never going to be a reason for having an abortion," Wilkins said.

"While I hope the circumstances would be few for which a woman could have an abortion for mental health reasons, nevertheless, the vast majority of physicians and therapists in the country will testify to the fact there are some circumstances where perhaps abortions are necessary in the interest of mental health."

Wilkins said the victim of a rape had to report the rape to the police within seven days of the rape, otherwise she couldn't have the abortion.

Incest victims had to report the incident to the police, not within seven days, but just prior to the abortion.

"Most rape victims, especially date-rape victims, don't ever report it to the police," Wilkins said.

"They only think about reporting it to the police after they find out they are pregnant six weeks later. By then, according to the statute, it's too late," he said.

"It appeared to me unwise to send a statute that in my opinion would certainly be invalidated by the Supreme Court. Just as a legal tactician, you want to keep winning," Wilkins said.

"One thing I learned from President Lee very early on in my legal career was you choose your cases carefully, especially in the Supreme Court."

"You choose the best possible case for the point you want to make," Wilkins said.

Wilkins said the overly restrictive definition of maternal health doesn't reflect medical reality. The strict reporting requirements in cases of incest and rape don't reflect the sociological realities that women don't report them.

Also, the threat of litigation would make it cost prohibitive for doctors to obtain the insurance needed to perform abortions.

When taken together, the bill had the practical effect of virtually eliminating all abortions in the state of Idaho.

Immigrant Jews learn of Passover

Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Yosef Mendeleivitch held up a piece of matzo, symbolizing Jewish freedom from slavery in ancient Egypt, and recited a blessing in Hebrew.

About 100 new Soviet immigrants in the room looked on with bewildered looks. Then they broke off and ate, for the first time in their lives, the unleavened matzo.

Mendeleivitch was teaching the Passover traditions to the new arrivals in Russian, telling them about the unleavened matzo. It commemorates the haste with which the Israelites fled from the Egyptian army, with no time to wait for their bread to rise.

He did not even recognize the story of Moses and the bulrushes, a story even non-Jews know," said Mendeleivitch, who spent 11 years in a Soviet prison before coming to Israel.

Passover begins this year at sundown April 9. The very presence of the Soviet Jews is viewed by Israelis as a fulfillment of the prayer at the end of the Passover story, to meet "next year in Jerusalem."

There is also an element of controversy, because the Soviet Jews are living in Gilo, a Jewish suburb built on land captured from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war.

Iraq warns of retaliation with nerve gas weapons

Associated Press

BAHDA, Iraq — President Saddam Hussein said for the first time Monday that Iraq has deadly biological and nerve gas weapons and has threatened to use them on Israel if the state attacks Iraq.

His weapons, usually artillery or missile warheads, contain relatively safe compounds which can be used to produce toxic nerve gases.

They are outlawed under a 1925 Geneva Convention which the United States and Soviet Union have signed.

In a clear reference to Israel, which is believed to be the only Middle Eastern power with nuclear weapons, Saddam said, "Those who are threatening us with nuclear bombs; we warn them that we will hit them with this binary chemical weapon."

Avi Pazner, a spokesman for Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, said, "We have no aggressive intention against anyone, including Iraq."

Asked about the possibility of a pre-emptive strike, Pazner said, "We don't even want to talk about that kind of thing."

Only the United States and the Soviet Union have officially admitted having binary weapons, although some other countries were believed to possess them.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Nizar Hamdon, undersecretary of the Iraqi Foreign Ministry, said Iraq developed the weapons before the end of the 8-year Iran-Iraq war but did not use them.

Hamdon claimed that during the war with Iran, "Iraq was offered enriched uranium and even a nuclear atomic bomb by people who were either American, British or Soviet agents. But Iraq turned down all offers."

He did not elaborate. Such an offer would not be in accord with Western efforts to block nuclear military technology to developing nations.

The Iraqi Foreign Ministry also said Monday that Iraq was not seeking to develop nuclear weapons.

"I say that if Israel dares to hit even one piece of steel on any industrial site, we will make the fire eat half of Israel," Saddam declared.

"Let them hear, here and now, that we do possess binary chemical weapons which only the United States and Soviet Union have," he said.

Top Court to consider punitive awards

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court Monday said it will decide whether skyrocketing punitive-damage awards in personal-injury and other cases can go so high they become unconstitutional.

In a case of enormous importance to American business and consumers, the court agreed to hear arguments in an Alabama insurance-fraud case that yielded a jury award of over $1 million.

The court must decide whether punitive damages aimed at punishing wrongdoers and deterring similar misconduct may be so large in some cases that they are fundamentally unfair. A ruling is expected sometime in 1991.

In other action, the court:

—Refused to expose car manufacturers to product-liability lawsuits for not installing air bags. Suits against General Motors, Honda and Nissan Motor Corp. were thrown out by lower courts and the justices declined to review them.

—Left intact a ruling that airlines say could impede mergers. The justices, in a case stemming from Delta Air Lines' acquisition of Western Airlines in 1986, refused to shield Delta from binding arbitration in a dispute with the union that had represented Western's flight attendants.

—Turned down an appeal by a Massachusetts church that said its religious freedom will be violated if state approval is required for the curriculum of a school it runs.

Campaigns gain from clean air donations

WASHINGTON — House Commerce and Energy Committee members are fattening their campaigns with money from industries concerned about the outcome of proposed clean air standards, a Congressional Quarterly study shows.

Rep. Howard Nielson, R-Utah, is not one of them. Although a member of the powerful panel, he is not seeking re-election and has no need of the contributions.

However, Nielson acknowledges that fellow members of the committee have little trouble in cashing in on the largess of the coal, automobile, electric, oil, natural gas and chemical industries — all having made large donations to panel members through their political action committees.

The Congressional Quarterly has found that such PACs gave $612,000 to the committee's 42 members last year — an average of $14,570 per member. Rep. Tom Tauke, R-Iowa, who is running for the Senate, received the most, $50,800.

Utah school to implement drug testing

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah — Box Elder High School officials are developing a voluntary drug-testing program for students involved in extracurricular activities, apparently a first of its kind in Utah.

Under the proposal, to be aired at a public meeting here Tuesday night, students participating in extracurricular activities ranging from athletics to debate and even the school's chess club would participate.

Next fall, the students would be asked to have their parents sign cards indicating whether they would voluntarily submit to drug screening. The sealed results would be released only to a doctor. In case of a positive test result, the physician would notify the student's parents.

School officials would not have access to the test results.

"I think it came about as a desire to extend our drug prevention program," said Assistant Principal Mike Madeo, who will present the program for possible approval by the school board on May 9.

He said he became interested in the program when he read about a school in Chicago that had mandatory drug testing for its athletes and cheerleaders.

Utah economy gets above-average grade

SALT LAKE CITY — Utah received solid grades on a national economic report card, earning top rankings in the job equity and capacity categories, says the Corporation for Enterprise Development.

The report card, released Monday, graded each of the 50 states' economies with letter grades, A to F, on four indexes.

The 1990 Development Report Card for the States, an annual report by the Washington-based CED, gives the Beehive State a good overall evaluation.

In the area of Development Capacity, CED analysts state that Utah earned an A because it has a work force that is "among the best-educated in the country," strong technological resources and a good infrastructure base. However, labor's financial capacity is well below average.

In Economic Performance, Utah got a B, getting strong marks for economic equity among its residents. In the Business Vitality area, the state earned a C. Utah also received a C for State Policy.

Supreme Court stays Harris execution

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court on Monday refused to let California carry out its first execution in 23 years, letting stand an order that blocks a murderer's Tuesday trip to the state gas chamber.

Judge John Noonan of the San Francisco-based 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said Friday, that Harris should be kept alive until a three-judge appeals court panel studies whether his lawyers or the psychiatrists they hired were incompetent in failing to have him tested for brain damage and other serious mental disorders.

Harris was convicted of killing two San Diego boys in 1978. The nation's highest court had ruled against him four times previously.

California Attorney General John Van De Kamp sought to have Noonan's order set aside, and his emergency request was submitted to Justice Sandra Day O'Connor. She referred it to the full Supreme Court.

The court voted to deny the state's request.

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justices Antonin Scalia and Anthony M. Kennedy voted to set aside the stay of execution and let Harris die.

ROTC blows out competition at regional championships

By TAMARA MCCOMBS
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU Army ROTC Ranger Challenge Team won the regional championship at Fort Lewis, Wash., in the competition held last weekend.

Maj. Robert Turbyfill, the Ranger coach, said, "These scores (from the competition) should make us national champions. They should stand up against the other regions in the country." Other teams in the competition were: Ricks College, San Diego State University, Iowa State University, North Dakota State University, California State University-Sacramento, University of Washington and Metropolitan State College (Denver).

The team won four of the eight events of the competition: the army physical fitness test, the one-rope bridge competition, the 10K forced march and the marksmanship competition. The team placed second in orienteering and grenade assault, third in patrolling and fourth in weapons assembly. Turbyfill said, "no other team won more than one event."

Turbyfill said the team had 299.1 average team points out of a possible average of 300. "The APFT was one of the higher points ... we felt good through the whole thing," he said.

The team competed Friday night and Saturday, with the patrolling competition taking place all night Saturday and finishing Sunday.

Turbyfill said Ricks won the orienteering competition because they had trained at Fort Lewis previously.

He said the weapons assembly competition was more difficult than anticipated. "In the weapons assembly there were different hand guards on the M-16s. They were tougher to get on, that hurt us a little," Turbyfill said.

The team was able to enter the regional competition because it won the Buffalo Brigade Ranger Challenge at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., Feb. 16 and 17.

Jury deliberates on Iran-Contra case

WASHINGTON — The jury in John M. Poindexter's trial began deliberating Monday whether the former national security adviser was guilty of withholding details of the Iran-Contra affair from Congress.

U.S. District Judge Harold Greene instructed the jury of eight women and four men to ignore the merits of President Reagan's policies of helping the Nicaraguan rebels or selling arms to Iran in an attempt to free American hostages.

Track teams win meets at UC-Irvine

By ANDY BOYCE
Universe Sports Writer

By a decisive margin, the BYU men's track team won the UC Irvine Invitational, a quadruple meet with UC Irvine, San Diego State and Cal-Poly Pomona on Saturday in Irvine. The women tracksters also won the UC Irvine Invitational outperforming San Diego State, Southern Cal and UC Irvine under a tight scoring system.

The men posted 79 points while UC Irvine took second with 60.5 points, San Diego State and Cal-Poly Pomona took third and fourth with 58.5 and 9 points respectively.

Frank Fredricks set a new UC Irvine stadium record in the 100 meters with a time of 10.31. The Cougars swept the event with Eric Akrogryam and Oluyemi Kayote placing second and third at 10.42 and 10.52 respectively.

Other first place finishers were Scott Peterson in the javelin at 190 feet seven inches while Kayote won the 200 meters at 20.99.

Coach Willard Hirschi said, "Kayote is already running great for us, our sprinters are very good and get us a lot of points."

Dave Spence won the 1,500 meters at 3:55.68 seconds. Paul Rosser won the 5,000 meters at 14:28.35 while Ron Shalvis and Loxley Walters took first in the pole vault and triple jump at 16 feet 3/4 inches and 48 feet 11 inches respectively.

Coach Mark Robison said, "We, as a coaching staff, are very pleased with our performances. We had great conditions and needed to have a good meet, which we did."

The women tracksters had 57 points followed by San Diego State with 49, USC 47 and UC Irvine 32.

Coach Craig Poole said, "It was an exciting and intense meet. We knew we could win if we performed well."

Angela Lee won the 5,000 meters at 17:33 to improve her personal best time by 30 seconds.

Chris Wilson won the high jump with a leap of 5 feet 9 inches while Katsi Leppaluoto kept her 1990 first-place victory string alive in the shot put with a heave of 45 feet 11 3/4 inches.

Cathy James won the discus with a throw of 156 feet 8 inches while Nicole Birk and Tricia Richardson won the 3,000 meters and 800 meters at 9:34.19 and 2:13.41.

Other tracksters who placed second were Laura Zaugg who ran a personal best in the 100 meter hurdles at 14.13 and Anu Kaljurand in the javelin at 141 feet 5 inches. Elizabeth Katoo finished the 1,500 meters in 4:31.74.

Anna Mosdell who earned second places in both the discus, 154 feet one inch, and the shot put, 45 feet 3 1/2 inches.

Lacrosse squad wins Colorado tourney

By MICHAEL J. WARD
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU lacrosse team showed some dominance on a road trip chalking up three victories Saturday in a tournament at the University of Northern Colorado.

BYU won 11-10, over the STX Shooters, 18-0, over Western States College and 14-6, over UNC to bring their season record to 7-1.

"We thought we had a chance at winning (the tournament) but we didn't think we would play so well," said BYU coach Greg Saunders.

The Cougars scored the first three goals against the Shooters, a club team from Denver that boasts three former All-Americans and a professional goalie.

"They were pretty confident until we took a three-point lead," said Saunders. Defenseman Dave Garff scored one goal for the Cougars and then at the end of the game he launched an 80-yard bomb for the Cougars' final point when the goalie left the goal unprotected. With ten seconds left to go the Shooters, down by one point, attempted to force the game into overtime. BYU's Todd James batted down a pass and gave the Cougars the win.

After pulling off the victory, the Cougars trounced Western States College in an 18-0 blowout. BYU then faced UNC, the host team, in the championship game where they won. BYU's next game will be at home Saturday, April 7, at 11:00 a.m.

UNLV downs Duke for title

Associated Press

DENVER — The NCAA's ultimate Rebel won its biggest prize.

UNLV ended the tournament of thrills and close finishes with the largest margin of victory in a championship game, a 103-73 win over Duke on Monday night.

The Runnin' Rebels became the first team to score more than 100 points in the championship game. They are also the first preseason No. 1 to win the title since North Carolina in 1982 and the first Western team since UCLA won in 1975.

The Rebels literally stole the title from Duke, which was making its eighth Final Four appearance. The Blue Devils went home again without a trophy, extending the longest streak of national semifinal futility.

The Runnin' Rebels also set a record for most points scored in a tournament with 571, just better than their regular-season average of 92.3.

Until Monday night, the largest margin of victory in a championship game was 23 points, when UCLA beat North Carolina 78-55 in 1968.

Wherever you go this summer, take an Independent Study course and earn university credit.

The benefit of BYU Independent Study is this: It conforms to your own pace and to your own schedule. And you can do it anywhere.

That flexibility gives you the opportunity to combine your education with your surroundings.

For instance, if you are going to be near a cultural center like New York or Los Angeles, take a humanities, English, art history, or theatre and film course.

If you are going to be around historic areas like Boston, Philadelphia, or

Washington D.C., bring along a history or political science course.

If you are working in a business environment, there are a number of courses like marketing, information management, accounting, economics and others that will make your experience more meaningful to you and your employer.

Regardless of your interest and need, taking an Independent Study course in a field environment can give you the opportunity to learn in the midst of unlimited resources and applications.

There are many courses to choose from. All of them will give you full university credit and can put you closer to graduation.

Pick up a FREE Independent Study catalog from the information desk at the Wilkinson Center, the ASB, your advisement center, or from our office at 206 Harman Building. Or, call 378-2868.

Take a course with you this summer wherever you go.

AIDS patient Ryan White near death

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Ryan White, whose battle with AIDS brought him scorn in his hometown but support from across the world, was hospitalized with internal bleeding Monday and was not expected to live, authorities said.

Doctors said Monday afternoon that White, 18, probably would not survive the day, said Carrie Van Dyke, director of health promotion for the State Board of Health.

Van Dyke said his mother, Jeanne, and his sister, Andrea, were among the relatives at his bedside.

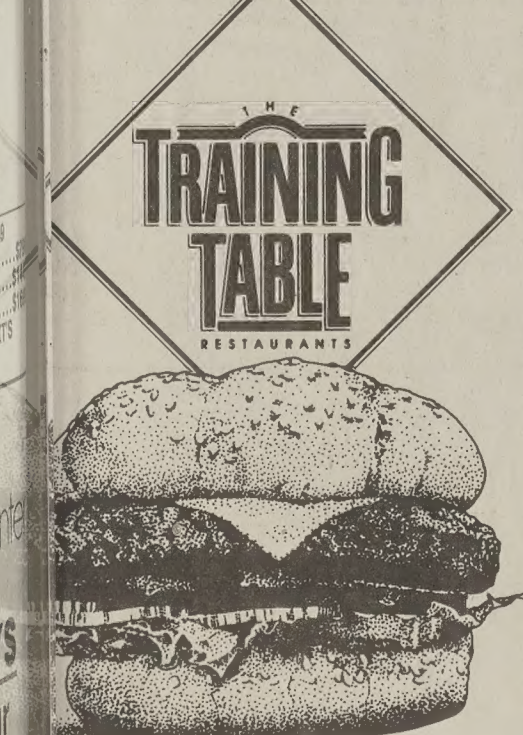

White's hemophilia, the disorder that initially exposed him to the deadly AIDS virus, prevented doctors from operating, said Van Dyke. She said she was told about White's condition by his mother at lunchtime.

"This is it. He's not expected to come out of it," Van Dyke said. "He's not responding."

White was in as grave condition as he had ever been, and was heavily sedated, Van Dyke said.

"I don't think he's suffering at all," Van Dyke voiced a small hope White would recover, saying, "He's surprised us before."

AT-A-GLANCE

The At-A-Glance column is for announcements and notices of meetings of organizations and groups which are not BYUSA-sanctioned clubs.

Announcements from officially recognized clubs appear in the Clubnotes column, which is published on Thursdays. Submissions for At-A-Glance must be received by noon on Monday for Tuesday's paper and by noon on Wednesday for Thursday's paper and must be resubmitted each week for continuing activities. Because of space restrictions, each announcement will be printed only once.

All items must be double-spaced, typed on an 8 1/2-by-11 sheet of paper and should not exceed 25 words. Submissions of a commercial nature, or which advertise activities resulting in remuneration to anyone, will not be accepted for publication.

No submissions will be accepted by phone.

School boards given right to raise taxes

By STEVE TANNER
Universe Staff Writer

New legislation gives Utah County school boards the ability to raise property taxes by two mills in order to reduce class size, said an official of the Utah Education Office.

Hal Robins, Education Office research consultant, said House bill 474, which was passed Feb. 21 and is effective April 23, gives school boards the prerogative to increase property taxes by two mills to raise money to hire more teachers. However, the increase is also subject to a public recall vote, he said.

The new law says the state will contribute 1.26 percent for each mil, up to the first two mills, per dollar of assessed property evaluation within the district, Robins said.

He said by raising property taxes two mills, districts could qualify for more money from the state.

Lynn Smith, business administrator for the Provo School District, said the Provo School Board had not decided whether it would implement an increase.

The board is "leaning toward putting the measure on the ballot this fall," and letting the public decide if they want an increase to hire more teachers, Smith said.

Officials from each of the other Utah County school districts said options were being considered before decisions would be made by the various boards.

Deanna Timothy, Education Office research analyst, said Provo schools averaged 26.79 students per teacher, Alpine School District averaged 27.03 and Nebo 27.79 students per teacher.

Iron County Superintendent of Schools Dee Stapley said Iron County has decided to implement the new increase.

"We are going to swap two mills from our capital budget and transfer it over to our operations and maintenance budget," Stapley said.

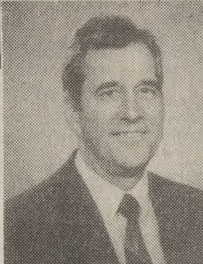

The new legislation would enable the school district to hire nine additional teachers, Stapley said.

A two mil increase in property taxes on a house with a value of a $60,000 would be about $14, he said.

BYU's men gymnasts wait for NCAA invite

By WENDY SECRIST
Universe Sports Writer

At the peak of its season, the BYU men's gymnastics team placed second in the Western Athletic Conference Championships Friday and placed several gymnasts in the individual WAC championships Saturday.

The defending WAC champion, the University of New Mexico, was victorious again with a new season high of 277.25. The Cougars finished with 273.35 and Air Force Academy was third with 266.4.

"We had a great meet," said Cougar coach Makoto Sakamoto. "It was the best performance we have had this year or any of the three years that I have been here."

"We looked pretty good. The guys were really psyched — it was really magic," Sakamoto said.

Sakamoto said he is still waiting for a phone call to confirm BYU's place at NCAA West Regionals April 7 at Oregon State University.

"It looks like we made it in the 8th or 9th spot for the region," Sakamoto said.

Darren Elg, a top Cougar gymnast who competed in only four events last weekend because of a wrist injury, said regionals would be tough for BYU.

Sakamoto said ten teams will be at NCAA regionals. "The top four will go to nationals. We are going in with 8th or 9th place so it will be hard to make the top four, but we will try to get as many individuals as we can at nationals," Sakamoto said.

Jason Brown, Per Brandstrom and Elg are three gymnasts that could go to nationals, Sakamoto said.

Sakamoto said he was especially pleased with the Cougars' performance on the pommel horse at the WAC Championships.

"Jason Brown is right up there in the nation," Sakamoto said. "If he has a meet like this one in Corvallis he will be up there with all the (top) guys."

Brandstrom was fourth on the pommel horse and sixth on the parallel bars. Todd Jennings was fifth on the vault and Ronald West placed fifth on the pommel horse. Fred Martin was fifth on the rings.

Elg said the team has done its best this season. "We have gotten better and better, but we have had to deal with a lot of injuries," Elg said.
